

CATHY J. GOODALE

STATEMENT

"My passion is nature, where everything connects for me. This energy saturates my work."

Cathy is a dedicated, persistent, and educated artist whose style reflects her individuality. Her career has been filled with painting, teaching and learning. The demand for excellence continues to drive her endeavors in life and her imagination pushes her to paint past "artistic safe places".

Growing up in Denver, Colorado, Cathy recalls her grandmother's scrapbooks filled with classic fine art reproductions. This early introduction to art classics was instrumental in leading Cathy to Stephens College in Missouri and to a degree in Fine Arts from the University of Northern Colorado. She continued her art training at Denver University, studying commercial art under William Sanderson.

Cathy has studied with numerous renowned artists including Charles Reid, Richard Schmid, Burt Silverman, Carolyn Anderson and Zolton Szabo. While watercolor lends itself to the spontaneity associated with her subject, became Cathy's magical media. The opportunity to paint with Schmid for a number of years ignited the passion for oil painting, once again. Now the subject inspires her whether a painting should be depicted in oil or watercolor. Through her continual studies she has obtained a strong work ethic and discipline as an artist, living by a Georgia O' Keeffe quote, "everything I do, I do so I can paint".

Teaching forces Cathy to clearly define the technical, conceptual and philosophical elements of painting. Cathy has taught for the Scottsdale Artist School, the Loveland Academy, Phil Levine Workshops, Adventure in Arts workshops, The Art Center of Estes Park, Colorado State University's Elderhostel Program plus the Goodale/Weakley Workshops taught with painter friend Ellie Weakley. Cathy also teaches her own classes in Estes Park, Colorado and Loveland Colorado. Teaching and painting have taken Cathy to Russia, Italy, France, Mexico, Costa Rica, Spain as well as numerous beautiful locations in the United States.

Cathy's family has always been a source of inspiration for her art and life; they are one of her greatest teachers.
